Marketing teams and Slack: A guide

Go to market faster and build invaluable relationships with your partners and customers with Slack.
Table of contents

Introduction 3

Get to market faster and win more customers 4

Fuel marketing efficiency with a productivity platform 7

Get more value from your marketing partnerships 9
Introduction

Today is an exciting time for marketing professionals. Automation, tech tools and easily accessible data allow marketing teams to understand customers’ needs more deeply than ever before. According to Salesforce’s most recent State of Marketing Report, 87% of marketers say that their work provides greater value now than it did a year ago.

The same report also found that more than 90% of CMOs say that organisations must embrace ongoing innovation to remain competitive. Technological transformation paired with high customer expectations and ongoing economic uncertainty requires organisations to reimagine customer interactions at every step of the buyer journey.

That’s a lot of pressure facing modern companies, but Slack is designed to simplify marketing processes while keeping employee costs steady. As a productivity-boosting platform, Slack streamlines day-to-day tasks, freeing up marketers to focus on creative, high-value work.

This guide provides tactical steps for using Slack to connect all the right people, teams and external partners to get to market faster. You’ll learn how to work in channels, integrate AI and the apps and services that you already use, and deploy various Slack features to surface information in a jiffy. With Slack, marketers can devote their time and energy to what matters most: reaching customers and letting them know about your product.

Use this handbook to learn how to:

1. Get to market faster and convert more customers
2. Fuel marketing efficiency with a productivity platform
3. Get the most value from your marketing partnerships
Get to market faster and win more customers

Slack channels are your home base for aligning your people. More than just a place to organise conversations, channels provide marketers a space to brainstorm ideas, organise timelines, execute campaigns, make data-driven decisions together and, for marketers, ultimately help you get to market faster. For example, you can partner more closely with your sales team in channels to sync on KPIs and get feedback on marketing initiatives.

Public channels are open to anyone at your company to join. These channels increase transparency while allowing everyone to benefit from the context of your conversations. When someone needs more information to move a campaign forwards – such as the latest survey results or the status of a billboard design – that information is readily accessible when you do your work in public channels. For sensitive or confidential conversations, you can use private channels. Only those who are invited can view the private channel and find its contents in search.

You can even use generative AI to quickly summarise conversations in channels with the ChatGPT app for Slack. This app provides a conversational interface powered by OpenAI’s large language models to summarise information, research tools to learn about any topic and writing assistance to quickly draft messages. The ChatGPT for Slack app is currently in beta, but you can sign up to join the access waiting list.

‘Getting approvals is a lot faster with Slack. And in our industry, being faster means you’re going to bring a product that’s on trend to market a lot quicker than normal.’

Christopher Newsome
Senior Product Developer for Advanced Concepts, Cole Haan
Get to market faster and win more customers

Quick tips for simplifying your marketing processes

Keep conversations focused: Organise channels by team (#team-marketing), campaigns and feature launches (#campaign-valentines or #feat-website), function (#surveynotifications or #announcements-marketing) and projects (#proj-blog-refresh or #proj-alpha). Start with a few and add more as you go.
Get to market faster and win more customers

Pin important files: Add bookmarks to the top of a channel to keep track of frequently used files, such as campaign kick-off decks and other important documents, including budget trackers, templates and training processes.

Get faster approvals: Share documents or decisions that need input or approval in the channel. At-mention managers or approvers to get their attention. Use emoji to signify approvals or other actions so that decisions are clear, trackable and accountable.

Automate everyday tasks: Workflow Builder is a visual tool that lets anyone automate routine tasks directly in Slack – with no coding required. Put these pre-built workflows into action with just a few clicks to customise them for your marketing team. Set up weekly reminders (/remind) for yourself, a user group (@marketing-team, for example) or an entire channel to remind team members to post status updates on campaign progress and keep records up to date.

Supplement the conversations happening in channels and direct messages with canvas, a dedicated place to keep your most essential resources and information, including workflows and third-party data from sources such as Salesforce.

Leave voice or visual notes asynchronously, to be viewed or listened to whenever your colleagues come back online, with clips.

Quickly hop into audio or video calls inside any channel or message and problem-solve with huddles. You can co-work together easily using new features such as scheduling and recording.
Fuel marketing efficiency with a productivity platform

When marketing professionals don’t understand their customers’ needs, their work comes across as inauthentic. Top reasons that marketing teams miss out on trends include:

- Not sharing information in a timely manner
- Not responding to and resolving brand incidents quickly
- Failing to incorporate the customer voice into marketing campaigns

Slack provides a dedicated platform for your team to make data-driven decisions, helping you to stay relevant to your customers. To reduce context switching, you can consolidate marketing insights from across various dashboards into one unified Slack channel with Marketing Cloud integrations. These integrations provide real-time alerts to monitor and adjust campaigns when needed and pass marketing leads on faster to sales.
Optimise marketing campaigns with Slack

Increase brand sentiment with aligned PR and social response: Tackle PR incidents faster with automated alerts from across social media and news outlets in a channel where teams can quickly triage. Team members across the company can get looped in and read all the context of the conversation so that they can quickly resolve the incident. And through announcement channels, it’s easy to share reactive messaging with the marketing department and across the company.

Attract more customers by empowering brand champions: Slack Connect makes it easier to nurture deep, differentiated partnerships with customers. Spin up a channel where you and your customers can efficiently work together to speed up approval cycles. You can also create a customer advisory board channel and source valuable feedback on products or marketing initiatives. When you bring the customer voice into the centre of everything that you do, you build long-term trust with your clients.

Create industry news and competitive intelligence channels where marketers can share recent findings and automatically pull in industry updates from trusted sources.

“Our #customer-interactions Slack channel allows me to understand customer needs and issues more broadly, which gives me more confidence to pick out the most valuable content to share across our social platforms.”

Melissa Francois
Global Social Media Manager, SurveyMonkey
Get more value from your marketing partnerships

Marketing teams need to draw from a wide set of data to make decisions. Slack brings key data and insights into channels where marketers can communicate and decide the best course of action. Closer collaboration with agencies and marketing partners means having lockstep alignment on revenue-generating activities that promote growth for the business.

Here are some ways that you can build a deeper relationship with partners to convert more bottom-of-the-funnel activities with Slack:

- Deliver enablement and training
- Align on targets and KPIs
- Seek feedback on upcoming marketing activities
- Quickly triage common sales requests using automated workflows
- Search across channels to find subject-matter experts to help inform marketing activities

Deliver quicker results with closer agency collaboration

Forget about calling a meeting. Bring agency relationships out of email and into Slack Connect channels, a secure way to communicate with external partners directly in your Slack workspace. Accelerate agency turnaround by sending and sharing files and reports into channels with partners across media, creative, PR and more to provide real-time feedback and deliver faster results together.

Expand reach with deeper marketing relationships

Centralise co-marketing ideation, planning and approvals in Slack Connect channels to fully align every stakeholder across organisations. Working together in one productivity platform means that you can coordinate launches for initiatives such as joint ads, webinars and sponsored events – in real time – to make a bigger impact across your shared audience.
Get more value from your marketing partnerships

Elevate the customer marketing experience

Put the customer voice at the centre of everything that you do by connecting with them in Slack to lead advisory councils, collect feedback via workflows and more. With Slack Connect, build differentiated partnerships with customers by quickly collaborating on customer studies and webinars. Plus, within Slack you can use generative AI to draft responses with the right tone and message for important partners.

Upgrade your marketing and sales partnerships

If an event, conference or webinar is part of your campaign, make sure that your invitation and RSVP lists stay updated with the help of the sales team. Just connect the Salesforce app to your workspace to automatically pull and share customer contact information directly in Slack. Slack channels make it easier to bring in collaborators from sales to respond to leads faster.

‘Slack opens doors for editors to reach across the aisle. That kind of communication is incredibly valuable because we don’t want to silo our talent.’

Brooke Siegel
Vice President of Content, Hearst Magazines

Convert more leads and shorten response time by using your tools in Slack

Spend less time coming up with a winning strategy and start increasing the likelihood of conversation. Integrate your go-to tools in Slack and loop in collaborators to respond to leads faster.

Simplify your processes by connecting these apps and services to your Slack workplace:

Salesforce Marketing Cloud Intelligence: Connect, visualise and act on your marketing data to optimise performance within campaigns and discover insights in real time.

Google Analytics: Instantly get automated reports and alerts sent directly to specific, relevant channels. Choose from a set of pre-made templates or create your own reports and alerts from scratch.
Get more value from your marketing partnerships

DocuSign: Get vendor and agency agreements signed faster by generating, sending and signing documents from Slack. Enable document status and task assignment alerts in both internal and Slack Connect channels.

Asana: Keep everyone aligned and projects moving forwards by pulling in updates from this project-tracking tool. Create tasks, add comments and mark them as complete without leaving the channel.

Add these apps to your workspace and discover more in the Marketing category of the Slack App Directory.
What’s next?

Here are a few things that you can do right now to start boosting productivity with Slack:

Make sure that everyone has the basics: Get the most out of Slack by learning the ins and outs of the product. Take a look at these helpful how-to videos on how to best use the platform and all of our tools, from clips to canvas.

Do some channel clean-up: Maintaining good channel hygiene is essential for keeping communication crystal clear between marketing teams and colleagues in other departments. Make sure to periodically audit your channel list, archiving ones that are no longer relevant or useful. Dive into these tips for reducing noise in Slack.

Rethink your channel names: Is there a consistent naming convention across all your channels? Are they labelled in a way that makes their purpose obvious? Take some time to rename channels so that they’re easy to find and follow. Learn more about best practices for naming channels.

Use integrations: Stay on top of campaigns, analytics and social media in Slack. Visit our collection of helpful integrations for marketing teams.

For further tips and how-tos on organising channels, working with apps and more, visit our marketing resources page. Or if you’d prefer to speak with someone, get in touch any time via feedback@slack.com or find us on Twitter @slackhq, and we’ll be happy to help.

‘With Slack, we were able to remove silos across the brand, and that has been critical to developing a sense of community and operating with agility.’

Amit Shah
President, 1-800-Flowers.com
About Slack

Slack is on a mission to make people’s working lives simpler, more pleasant and more productive. It is the productivity platform for customer companies that improves performance by empowering everyone with no-code automation, making search and knowledge-sharing seamless, and keeping teams connected and engaged as they move work forwards together. As part of Salesforce, Slack is deeply integrated into Salesforce Customer 360, supercharging productivity across sales, service and marketing teams. To learn more and get started with Slack for free, visit slack.com/intl/en-gb/ or connect with us @SlackHQ.

The preceding information is intended for informational purposes only, and not as a binding commitment. Please do not rely on this information in making your purchasing decisions. The development, release and timing of any products, features or functionality remain at the sole discretion of Slack, and are subject to change.